Danielle Stone is an Officer in PennStuart's Abingdon, Virginia office. She is member of the firm's Professional Liability and Insurance Defense practice groups with extensive experience in defending medical and professional malpractice claims in Virginia and Tennessee. Born and raised in Erwin, Tennessee, Danielle lives in Abingdon with her two sons and two Siberian huskies.

Danielle's practice is devoted to defending long term care facilities in all phases of the litigation process and in formal mediation and arbitration proceedings. She provides guidance on day-to-day operational issues for long term care facilities and advises clients on the complex array of regulatory compliance matters affecting the long term care industry. She maintains extensive contacts with respected medical experts in the long term care field and is well-positioned to provide comprehensive, pre-suit evaluations on issues of liability and exposure. She also represents health care professionals in investigations and credentialing matters before the Virginia Department of Health Professions.

- Danielle serves on the Character and Fitness Committee of the Virginia Board of Bar Examiners and as Chair of PennStuart's Recruiting Committee.
